Public Health

Earn your master's degree in Public Health and make a difference.

Public health problems affect us all, no matter who you are or where you live. The need for individuals with the proper education and skillset to address these issues continues to grow. With a master's degree in Public Health, you will be prepared to make a lasting impact in your community.

Our MPH program

Gain the insight and tools necessary to advance your career and compete in today's highly competitive job market. In as few as 12–15 months, this program will teach you how to tackle a range of public health issues from acute and chronic illnesses to lifestyle and health behavior change, including maternal and child health, the opioid epidemic, Medicare for all, influenza, obesity, and emerging health issues.

Flexible online classes

The MPH program is offered fully online in an accelerated 7-week format. With six class starts per year you can enter the program when the time is right for you! Take classes full- or part-time and complete in as few as 12–15 months.

Choose from three concentrations:

- Community Health
- Global Health
- Health Policy and Management

Our MPH program promotes equity, inquiry, health, and well-being, as well as the development of highly skilled leaders who become public hospital administrators, policy makers, public health directors, community leaders, and more.

With three concentrations to choose from, your MPH will enable you to meet your personal and professional development goals.
